Law360 White Collar Editorial Advisory Board

Law360, New York (March 10, 2015, 5:08 PM ET) -- Law360 is pleased to announce the formation of its 2015 White Collar editorial advisory board.

The purpose of the editorial advisory board is to get feedback on Law360's coverage and to gain insight from experts in the field on how best to shape future coverage.

The members of the 2015 White Collar Law360 editorial advisory board are:

Mark S. Cohen, Cohen & Gresser LLP
Mark S. Cohen is a co-founder of Cohen & Gresser and the chair of its white collar defense and litigation practice groups. A former federal prosecutor in the Eastern District of New York, his white collar practice includes regulatory enforcement, internal investigations, criminal antitrust, and FCPA and other anti-corruption matters.

Greg Deis, Mayer Brown LLP
Greg Deis is a partner at Mayer Brown LLP whose practice focuses on internal investigations, white collar criminal defense and complex litigation. Deis previously served as an assistant U.S. attorney in Chicago assigned to the public corruption section.

Steven Fagell, Covington & Burling LLP
Steve Fagell, a partner in Covington & Burling's Washington office and co-chairman of the firm's anti-corruption group, represents companies, boards of directors and senior executives in government enforcement matters, internal investigations and shareholder litigation. He served as deputy chief of staff and counselor in the Justice Department's Criminal Division from 2009 to 2010.

James P. Hanlon, Faegre Baker Daniels
J.P. Hanlon is co-chair of the firm's white collar defense and investigations practice. He focuses on representing businesses and individuals in government investigations, conducting internal investigations and counseling clients on compliance and regulatory issues. Hanlon previously served as a federal judicial law clerk and federal prosecutor.

Todd Haugh, Kelley School of Business, Indiana University
Todd Haugh is an assistant professor of business law and ethics at Indiana University's Kelley School of Business. Haugh teaches and writes on white collar crime, sentencing and business ethics. He is a former Supreme Court fellow, federal law clerk, and white collar criminal defense attorney at Winston & Strawn LLP and Stetler Duffy & Rotert Ltd.

David Laigaie, Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott LLC
David Laigaie chairs Eckert Seamans' white collar defense and investigations practice. He focuses on white collar defense, grand jury representation and internal corporate investigations, including matters involving health care fraud, securities fraud, export violations, pharmaceutical marketing fraud and violations of the False Claims Act.

Pravin Rao, Perkins Coie LLP
Pravin Rao, a partner in Perkins Coie's Chicago office and a member of the firm's white collar and investigations practice, defends clients in government enforcement matters, conducts internal investigations and counsels on compliance issues. Rao is a DOJ/SEC appointed FCPA corporate monitor, having served as a federal prosecutor and SEC Enforcement Branch chief.

Jonathan Schmidt, Ropes & Gray LLP
Jonathan Schmidt is a lawyer in Ropes & Gray's government enforcement group. He represents companies and individuals facing government action, investigations and prosecutions. Schmidt, a former federal prosecutor, is an experienced trial attorney and has led more than 50 jury trials. He also spent two years in Sarajevo as an international war crimes prosecutor.

Michelle Shapiro, Dentons
Michelle J. Shapiro is a member of Dentons' white collar and government investigations practice. She represents companies and individuals in internal investigations, government investigations, enforcement actions and criminal prosecutions around the world. She also advises clients on all aspects of global anti-corruption compliance, including policy implementation, training and due diligence.

--Editing by Brian Baresch.